

Vyr & Mey

“Grass”

Episode 07

Version 01 – 6/12/2005

Vyr appears with a cardboard tube and pulls out something wrapped up. We see that it is a patch of grass. Vyr lays the patch of grass down on the floor to perform a test.

Vyr pulls out a watering can from behind his back and pours some water on the grass, pulls back slightly and returns running over it. As soon as he stands on the grass, he slides and falls on his back. Mey hears the noise of Vyr running and gets out of there.

Mey emerges running from the distance. When he approaches the grass he stops abruptly. He steps on the grass with his toe, testing it. He also pulls a watering can out from behind his back and waters the grass.

Vyr, hidden behind the pile of his watering can and cardboard tube, approaches Mey, moaning.

Mey amuses himself watering the grass. Vyr moans a bit more.

Mey motions to Vyr to look at the grass, which is now growing to the side, in new patches. In addition to the grass, small flowers emerge.

Vyr is amazed at Mey's trick and, with his watering can, starts to water the first patch of grass. Wanting to have more grass and flowers than Mey, he appears with another watering can. New patches and flowers grow.

Mey signals to Vyr that something went wrong behind him, but Vyr takes no notice. One of the flowers is a man-eating plant and ends up swallowing Vyr.

Lettering: “The grass always seems greener on the other side”
